

1. Did the course meet your expectations? Why or Why not?
Yes, the course met my expectations. My main goal was too able to improve on my writing skills (pertaining to law). I was able to do this and learn important steps to law writing, like IRAC writing.
2. Was the course presented well? Were the ideas discussed in the chatroom, course text, and transcript notes well-organized and conveyed clearly?
I found the course very interesting and beneficial. It was presented well by Professor Farrar and all the ideas were very organized and structured.
3. Were the assignments beneficial to the learning process? Why or why not?
YES, the assignments were great for me in the learning process. Having to think about the particular issues that were discussed during the online chat proved beneficial. In particular the assignment feedback was great. It was beneficial to have an experienced and knowledgeable professor critique my work and then respond with excellent notes. I like this style of teaching.
4. What did you like most about the course? What did you like least?
I enjoyed having to read multiple cases and figure out the issues and then apply the IRAC writing style. I certainly felt like a lawyer at times.
5. What did the professor do well? What could the professor have done better?
Professor Farrar presented the information brilliantly and helpfully. Her assignment critiques/comments were very helpful. I learned a lot about the IRAC method.
6. Is this course something you would recommend to a friend considering law school? Why or Why not? (Please be as honest possible, I will not take any of your comments personally.) Yes, I would recommend this course to others. This course is a must for the non-traditional law student. I was not familiar with the IRAC writing style but now I feel like a professional in IRAC method.

I may use some of your comments for testimonials on the website. If so, your email address (but not your name) will be provided. If you object to this please let me know.